

Declares Pat Rooney Wrote Song English Soldiers Sing

Widow of Noted Comedian of Years Ago Says He Composed "Reilly's Hotel" While Playing at Holliday Street Theater in Baltimore.

Baltimore, July 24.—While the English Tommies are making the trenches ring with Pat Rooney's famous song, "Reilly's Hotel," the Germans are detaining his daughter, Josie, in Berlin. Whether the latter is in the spirit of retaliation or not, is shrouded in unbreakable gloom, but the fact remains that she is there with her husband, Percy Harvey, who is looked upon as an English subject, because his father was born in England, and, furthermore, she cannot get out. To make matters worse, she has about forty-three weeks of absolutely good time booked over the big vaudeville circuits.

Leaving her in Berlin, the jump is made to the trenches, and it is found that warm discussion has arisen as to the authorship of the chorus:

Is this Mr. Reilly, they speak of so highly?
Is this Mr. Reilly, they speak of so highly?
Is this Mr. Reilly, they speak of so highly?
I'm glad, Mr. Reilly, you're down d-n well!

Leslie Stuart, of Florida fame, declares he wrote the song, or, at least, the music, some thirty-odd years ago.

This morning Mrs. Pat Rooney, the widow of the famous Irish comedian, sat in the parlor of the pretty Rooney home, at 507 North Patterson Park avenue, and told how Pat wrote the song, and that if there were any stealing of ideas it was from the other side of the Atlantic.

Made a Big Hit.

"Pat was playing at Holliday Street Theater," said Mrs. Rooney, "and he knew old John Reilly, who kept the hotel next to the theater. He walked in the place one night, after he had heard some people in the wings lauding Reilly's place, and as he stepped in he sang the little ditty, making up the lines and music as he went along."

"It made such a hit at the time that Pat rounded it out and sang it at his next performance. It went with a scream and was always one of his stand-bys. Now that was over thirty-five years ago. I am certain, because my memory hasn't failed me, though I could hardly do a soubrette part at my weight. Yes, dear, old Pat and Reilly were so well known that he was often advised to bill himself as Rooney and Reilly."

"After his death in New York, twenty-three years ago, I saved up his music and plays. We were playing in 'Lord Reilly' when the end came, and I kept them for years, but the children said there would never be any use for them, and, little by little, they became lost and mislaid. Some time ago some people wanted to get permission to copyright the song and I looked among some old papers, but could not find anything relating to the old Reilly song, but you can say for me that Pat Rooney wrote the song and it will always be his."

And now for Berlin. Mrs. Rooney declared that with all the splendid season waiting and ready, Pat's daughter Josie had to stay in that old German place because her husband's father was English, although his mother was German and he was born and raised in Berlin. The last word received from her was that she expected to get leave to embark soon and that the American consul and his assistant, Roland B. Harvey, of Baltimore, were working in her behalf.

"They can claim all they want to about the Reilly song and they can keep Josie in Berlin if they want," sighed Mrs. Rooney, "but things will come right in the end. Josie will be back home with her two little ones; those who knew Pat and appreciated his talents know that he wrote the song in question, so why should we worry about it?"

Rooney's Interesting Family.

The Rooneys form an interesting family, there being four girls, Matty, who is Mrs. Clayton Kennedy, of New York; Katy, who is Mrs. John Harding, of this city; Mrs. Harvey, who is in Berlin; Josie, who is in a sketch with Walter Clinton, and the one son, Pat, who is fast gaining a most enviable reputation, with his wife, Marion Bent, in one of the cleverest song and dance sketches on the road today. The theatrical trend is up-ermost in the family and a number of the grandchildren of the famous comedian and dancer appear to inherit their ancestor's talents. Two of the daughters, Matty and Katy, and one of the children have been engaged in motion picture work in this city and it is just possible that the family will go into the producing business on a large scale.

So while Pat Rooney is being importalized in the English army, Pat's daughter is with the Germans feverishly waiting for the word that will let her go back home to the old home in Baltimore. In all the discussion the hotel of the famous Reilly still stands at Holliday and Fayette streets, but it is not the famous resort of the stars of the stage gone by and the genial old proprietor died soon after the big fire in 1904. The city expects to buy the property shortly to make way for the Civic Center, so with the razing of the building the only thing left of Reilly's Hotel will be

Is this Mr. Reilly, they speak of so highly?
Is this Mr. Reilly, they speak of so highly?
Is this Mr. Reilly, they speak of so highly?
I'm glad, Mr. Reilly, you're down d-n well!

Pontoons to Lift the F-4.

Announcement was made yesterday by Secretary Daniels that six specially constructed pontoons are about to be sent to Hawaii to lift the wreck of the submarine F-4, which went down in Pearl Harbor some months ago. The battleship Maryland will take the pontoons to Hawaii. The work of raising the submarine then will proceed in accordance with plans perfected by Admiral Moore.

FAMOUS WOMAN, HER BIRTHDAY AND YOURS

July 25—Elizabeth of Belgium, Elizabeth Hamilton, Emily Farmer.

By MARY MARSHALL.

The women born on July 25 may choose for their birthday patroness between a Belgian queen, a Scotch writer or an English artist. Probably the most talented of the trio was Miss Emily Farmer who was born in England in 1824. Her first distinction was gained as a miniature painter but later she gained great popularity for her charming drawings of children. "Deceiving Granny," "In Doubt," and "Kitty's Breakfast" are three old-time favorites still seen framed on the walls of many an old house where they have hung for fifty years, ever since Miss Farmer was one of the most popular of living women artists.

Mrs. Elizabeth Hamilton was a Scotch woman born in 1758 and, though she was never married, in later life she chose to be styled "Mrs." a privilege not usually taken by our British cousins.

Elizabeth Hamilton wrote verse and prose, all of a strong Scotch flavor which was much admired by her contemporaries although practically never read nowadays. She was influential in literary circles in her day and was one of the best hearted of philanthropists.

Today is the birthday of Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, wife of King Albert, who just at present holds a very unsatisfactory position among kings and substantiates the old adage that "uneasy lies the head that wears a crown." Queen Elizabeth ranks, however, among the best-loved women of Europe. Even before the recent troubles in Belgium her name was loved by her husband's subjects and since misfortune has brought all Belgium into closer sympathy she is fairly idolized. She was married fifteen years ago, being a Bavarian princess of many charms and unusual intellectual attainments. She has two sons, Leopold, born in 1901, and Charles, born two years later. Her only daughter is Marie Jose, born in 1906.

HOROSCOPE.

The stars incline, but do not compel. Sunday, July 25, 1915.

Mercury and Venus are both strongly adverse today, while Uranus is mildly benefic in influence. The visiting of friends or relatives will be unlucky today according to astrology. Letter writing also may cause trouble.

The rule is an unlucky one for courtship. Engagements made while this configuration prevails may be exceedingly unlucky, as the stars presage change, jealousy, and even scandal.

It is a favorable time for awakening interest in spiritual affairs, as the way is believed to make the mind sympathetic to appeals that stir the higher impulses.

As astrology is held to be more or less concerned in the prophecies recorded in the Bible, certain interpretations have a special interest at this time. The seers of today declare that, with the ending of the 2,520 so-called "gentile years" in 1915, all governments of Europe will disintegrate "for every one, from the least to the greatest, is given to covetousness, from the prophet to the priest every one deals falsely."

Out of the wreck of the world a new system will arise and after "much tribulation" the spiritual vision will guide so that what is in a sense the millennium will begin.

In this millennium the United States will have a foremost part, it is prophesied, and among her citizens the Jews will be foremost, since they will survive the wreck of the world.

Little hope is given of peace before 1917, and it may be two years later before there is anything like a reassuring evidence of recovery from the terrible effects of the long war.

In this time of rehabilitation there will be men and women who have been prepared for leaders, it is prophesied, and these, the Elect, will be found among all the nations. Purified by suffering and service, they will arise to the exigencies of a time that is the crisis toward which the wise men looked through the centuries.

In the new order of things a democracy in which the brotherhood of man is recognized as never before will rule and the higher powers of mind and spirit, long obscured by gross and material things, will develop.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have a rather harassing year. They should guard the family circle with vigilance. Annoyances from young persons may be experienced.

Children born on this day may be alert, vigorous and active. These subjects of Leo are often imaginative and inclined to exaggerate. In business they may have vicissitudes.

In Charge of Three Yards, Score Of Australians Sacrifice Lives

Special Men Selected to Capture Two Saps Driven by Turks in Night—Attacking Party Almost Annihilated, but Survivors Are Triumphant.

London, July 24.—An Australian trooper of the brave little Antipodean contingent which is holding a bit of coast on the west side of Gallipoli Peninsula at Gaba Tepe, writes as follows to a friend here:

"Under cover of darkness the Turks drove two saps to within four yards of our lines. The dawn revealed to us the two danger points strongly fortified by sandbags. The situation having been reported to brigade headquarters, the instruction came back that the saps be destroyed. Special men were selected to form the two storming parties, which carried with them the tools for demolition work. At 1 o'clock thirty men swarmed over the trench top and were greeted with a withering fire. Half a dozen fell back dead or wounded and the rest endeavored to cover the paltry four yards to the sap heads.

"Another dozen were knocked over during the scramble over the bodies of the dead which lay on that twelve feet. One party turned the Turks out of a sap and were then compelled to retire, leaving the demolition work to be done later. The second party bayoneted the occupants of the point it assaulted, destroyed the sap and occupied its head.

"No news came from the nine or ten men here for several hours. Firing at all points was incessant, and communication by word of mouth was impossible. At last a message was thrown back in a cartridge case from the lieutenant in charge, saying that he had several wounded men whom he would endeavor to get back after dark. The officer had the satisfaction of accomplishing his purpose.

"The terrible carnage among the Turks during their supreme effort to dislodge us on May 19 put great heart into our ranks. Ever alert the Colonials were ready to meet the strain when it came. The sight of seemingly endless masses of the enemy advancing upon them might well have shaken the nerve of the already tired troops.

"Our machine guns and artillery mowed the attackers down in hundreds, and still the advancing wall swept on. On still! Would the ranks never waste in strength? Not till the wave was at point-blank range from the middle trigger fingers did it break and spend itself among our barbed wire entanglements.

"Turks were shot in the act of jumping into our trenches. Corpses lay with their heads and arms hanging over parapets. Our fire gradually dominated the ground in front. Those who turned to fly were mowed down before they could go a dozen yards. The Germans sent their supports and reserves forward in droves. It was sickening to behold the slaughter our fire made among the massed battalions as they issued from concealment into open space.

"These unfortunate Turks scrambled along toward us over piles of dead bodies. In an instant a company would be enveloped in the smoke of a shrapnel salvo. When the air cleared that company would be stretched or writhing on the ground, with another company approaching and ready to share its predecessor's fate.

"It became a question not of the success of the attack, but how many Turks we could kill. The wastage of life continued long after the failure of the assault had become apparent. A green patch of cultivation on our right center was a shambles. On these few acres our burial party, working during the armistice which followed, counted no fewer than 4,000 Turkish and German dead. Our losses were probably not a tenth of the enemy's.

"The Turkish re-enforcements seem more than to keep time with their casualties."
